The Epworth League social which was held on the church lawn at Wolfburg on the evening of the 18th was a grand success, socially as well as financially. Quite a nice sum was netted. MAINE'S CREW FOUND

Remains of Sailors in Crushed Compartment of Ship.

Havana, July 22.—The remains of four of the Maine's crew were found yesterday crushed amidships beneath the superstructure that had been thrown up forward. There was also found a gold locket and chain. On the locket was this inscription: "J. R. Bell."

Bell was the steward of Captain Sigsbee. The locket was found under the companionway communicating between the captain's cabin and the wardroom below.

The cofferdam is holding perfectly. Tomorrow it is possible that the rest of the water will be pumped out.

It is apparent that the Maine was blown up by an exterior explosion.

SUPT. W. L. COOPER AND SON DROWN

Canoe Strikes Rock in Rapids of Susquehanna and Occupants
Are Thrown Into River—Many Charges of Dynamite—Bodies Recovered.

About 2:30 o'clock last Saturday afternoon while Supt. W. L. Cooper of the Bedford Division, P. R. R., and his son, W. L. of Harrisburg, were descending the Susquehanna River in a canoe, their craft upset in rough water and both were drowned. The accident was witnessed by a track-walker who recovered the canoe.

Mr. Cooper, with his wife and daughter, went to Harrisburg on Friday. From Harrisburg Mrs. and Miss Cooper took the train for Pequea, where they intended to spend some time. The father and son left Harrisburg to make the trip in the latter's canoe. Though the water was rough they did not regard the trip as dangerous, the son having made it previously.

W. L. COOPER, JR.

At the place where the drowning occurred the water is very swift, passing between two jutting rocks. About midway between the two visible rocks is another which does not reach the surface and it is thought that this obstruction, which cannot be seen in going down the river, was struck by their canoe when it turned over and threw the father and son into the current.

According to the story of the only witness one of the two did not come into view, hence it is thought he was dashed against one of the rocks and rendered unconscious. The other man was seen to swim for a time before he was engulfed by the water.

Superintendent McCaleb of the Philadelphia Division of the P. R. R., sent a force of men to the scene of the accident in the hope of recovering the bodies of the unfortunate victims, and all the rivermen of the section aided in the search. Nitroglycerine and dynamite were exploded in the hope of raising the bodies but without avail.

The Coopers camped out Friday night. Saturday they resumed their trip and were in Columbia about noon. The accident occurred at Sowers' Point some seven miles below Columbia.

The elder Cooper was widely known in railroad circles, having held many positions of trust during the past score of years. He was born in Lancaster County on January 23, 1860. He entered the service of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company in 1879 at Philadelphia. In 1883 he was sent to Tyrone, where he was given the title of assistant supervisor of the Middle Division. A year later he was removed to Huntingdon and in 1886 he was sent to Pittsburg as assistant supervisor of the Pittsburg Division. In 1887 he was sent to the Frederick Division and two years later to the Philadelphia, each time as assistant supervisor. In 1897 he was made supervisor of the Middle Division and in 1900 was promoted to assistant engineer of the Sunbury Division. In 1901 he was made assistant engineer of the Schuylkill Division and in 1903 was made assistant superintendent of the Pittsburg Division.

In 1905 he was promoted to the office of Superintendent of the Bedford Division, which position he held at the time of his death. He was regarded as an exceptionally capable man and was slated for an important promotion. He was a member of the Presbyterian Church and the Masonic fraternity.

W. L. Cooper, Jr., who met death with his father, was twenty-one years of age. He was a graduate of Juniata College, Huntingdon, and of Cornell University, having completed his course in civil engineering at that institution a year ago, and since that time has been working at Harrisburg.

Bodies Recovered

The body of the younger man was seen to float upon the water Monday evening about 6:30 o'clock and was recovered and taken to Columbia. The father's body was not recovered until after 6 o'clock Tuesday morning when it too was taken to Columbia.

A special train left Harrisburg Tuesday afternoon for Columbia, where the bodies were taken on. Mrs. Cooper and Miss Anna, together with friends and railroad officials, being taken on at Lancaster and other points. The train proceeded to Christiansa where interment was made. The funeral was also attended by Vice President Myers, General Manager Long and other officials from Philadelphia, who went to Christiansa by special train.

Mrs. Cooper and Miss Anna, Miss Maud Colvin, who was the fiancée of young Mr. Cooper and who left Bedford on receipt of news of the accident and joined Mrs. and Miss Cooper at Lancaster, and Mr. T. M. Gephart, Superintendent Cooper's assistant here, who had also gone to the scene upon receipt of the news, returned to Bedford Wednesday afternoon on a special train.

He was employed by the Roaring Spring Planing Mill Company and was at work helping to erect a new barn for Abram Colebaugh of Osterburg when he was stricken. Heart trouble is supposed to have caused his death.

He was a resident of Roaring Spring for many years and held in high esteem by his fellow townsmen. He was aged about 62 years. His wife and the following children survive: George of Pittsburg, William and Jesse, of Chicago, and Margaret at home. One sister, Mrs. I. W. Hess of Altoona, also survives.

The Difference

By ANNIE HINRICHSSEN

(Copyright, 1911, by Associated Literary Press.)

The chorus girl and the chorus soldier boy swung into place in the marching, singing column.

"Our life is a glorious glitter," they sang.

"It's a glitter all right," muttered the soldier boy, "a silly, tinsel glitter."

The chorus girl looked at him in surprise. For weeks they had marched side by side in the chorus of "The Fighting Prince," and this was the first time he had ever spoken to her.

"You don't like it?" she asked.

"I hate it. Do you care for it?"

The leading lady was singing. They were at the rear of the stage.

"I have no illusions about it," she answered. "It is a means of bread and butter."

"I had illusions, an artistic ideal and operatic ambitions."

"Have you kept them?"

"I have learned the limit of my ability. The best I can do is to carry a tin sword and strut in a chorus with a score of other mediocre warblers. I leave the stage at the end of my contract. Say," he hesitated like a bashful schoolboy, "I know you are—you are awfully particular and prudish, but would you—won't you have supper with me after the show tonight? I abhor this whole crowd, except you. I've wanted to know you—you are different from the others."

The girl looked squarely into his eyes. "You're different, too," she said frankly. "I'll go with you."

"You are more different than ever in your street clothes," he informed her across the restaurant table.

"So are you," she retorted. "In citizen's apparel, with your face washed clean you look like—may I say it?"

"Go on."

"Like a nice, well raised young man from some quiet, little city a long way from New York."

"Good. At least, I was well raised and the home city is quiet and little and far away."

"And probably your father was the wealthy man of the little town and your mother was the grand lady. You a sweet, charming, conventional girl with domestic tastes and little knowledge of the outside world."

"There is such a girl there."

"An old sweetheart, Jack?"

"We grew up together in the little city. She is my ideal woman—conventional, domestic and innocent."

"You will be very happy," she commented dully. The color had left her face and her lips were rigid.

"I wish you would leave the stage, Eleanor. You have been a good friend, a true comrade in this last month. I shall be happier if I can think of you in a different, less disillusionizing environment."

"Don't think of me at all. I am a child of this great, wicked city. After tonight we shall never see each other again."

"It's no use to send a letter in to Miss Mayne," the doorkeeper was saying to an insistent young man. "She never reads stage door letters nor speaks to Johnnies."

The young man wrote his name beneath the superscription on the letter. "Take that to her."

A few minutes later he was in a stage dressing room.

"I've come back," he announced.

"To carry a tin sword in the chorus?"

"No; to take a certain girl out of the chorus; to take her back with me to a quiet, little town."

"To visit your wife?"

"To be my wife."

"But the other girl, the first sweetheart, the innocent—"

"We have broken our engagement. She is as glad to be free as I am. When I went back she—she, I don't want to talk like a cad, but I want you to know the truth—she bored me. Her innocence and conventionality are the result of a narrow environment. She knows only the little world of the little town, and she is satisfied that that is all there is worth while in life. She welcomed me as a prodigal and expected a bended knee repentance and confession of the sins I must surely have committed out in the wicked world. We have not one taste or interest in common, except the picnics and the strawberry festivals. The woman I love is one who has lived in the big, wicked world, who knows life and has kept her soul pure and true. The little town is a lovely, quiet spot, and it will be a heaven if—if you are there. Will you come back with me?"

"The right sort of man chooses his wife from an environment which makes her innocent."

"This man has learned a few things about women, and he will learn more if you will teach him. I am an ignorant country boy."

"You are not. You are everything that is clever and wise and dear, and—and of course, I am going back with you."

Another Cure by Thunder.

Another case has been added to the long list of those who are said to have been cured of deafness and dumbness by a sudden shock. This time the story comes from Amlens, where a woman is said to have recovered her speech after a particularly loud clap of thunder. There have been heavy storms in the region for the last few days, accompanied with hail, rain, thunder and lightning, and trees in some places have been pulled up by the roots. At others lightning struck houses and barns and horses and cattle have been killed. A woman forty-eight years of age, the wife of a workman, had completely lost her speech since 1905. She was still able to hear, but the only way she had of communicating with any one was by writing. She was subjected to various treatments, among others that of electricity; but they seemed to have no effect. During the recent thunderstorms she was seized with a terrible nervous attack, and suddenly she recovered her speech, and is now able to converse as easily as before. Several physicians have come to question her, and her cure is talked of as almost miraculous.

A Cheering Arabian Plant.

"I saw a little of Arabia in my trip around the world by way of the Suez canal," said Reuben Ferguson of Maryland. "An English tourist suggested that I ought to take a turn with the laughing plant of the Arabian region. He had a native find some of the plant and the seeds thereof, predicting that if I would make a tea out of the seeds or even make the seeds and leaves into a powder and take a dose of it occasionally the effect would be cheering and that I would desire to laugh for an hour or more without apparent reason."

"Once assured that there was no danger from the effects I tried the seeds and am ashamed to tell what others told me of my antics. It was a case of high jinks, dancing and foolishness both in conversation and action. I cannot recall what I said or what sort of capers I was guilty of, but those who were with me seemed to take delight in telling of my intoxication and the utter nonsense of my conversation. Once they had told me of a few things I decided to have nothing more to do with the laughing plant."

Terrifying.

The little boy regarded the pictures of the harem skirt with starting eyeballs.

"Does it mean that I am to have twice as many trousers cut down for me?" he shrieked.

Then he fell on his knees and prayed as never before that several sisters might be vouchsafed him in the future.

F. W. Jordan Sells Remarkable Catarrh Cure.

Pour a few drops of HYOMEI (pronounced High-o-mei) into the hard rubber inhaler and you can then breathe into the lungs the very same antiseptic, germ killing air as you would breathe in the Australian forests of eucalyptus, where catarrh is unknown.

And HYOMEI is so pleasant to use; you'll like to use it; when you breathe it the effect on the inflamed catarrh infected and germ ridden membrane is soothing and healing.

In five minutes you get such wonderful relief that you will know that at last you have a cure for catarrh.

A HYOMEI outfit which consists of one bottle of HYOMEI, a hard rubber pocket inhaler, a medicine dropper and simple instructions for use, costs only $1.00, and extra bottles of HYOMEI, if afterward needed, 50 cents.

Some Wonderful Old People

Margaret E. Sangster, writing of youth and old age in the August Woman's Home Companion, says:

"Oliver Wendell Holmes, who retained youth in its sparkling efflorescence to the very end; Edward Everett Hale, whose benignant wisdom and humor never suffered the slightest diminution; Julia Ward Howe, as exquisite in age as she had been charming in youth; Rebecca Harding Davis, strong, cultured and sincere through all the years till the last one came, are fine examples of the imperishable vitality of youth beneath the mask of age. There are plenty of people on the stage still, living and working and serving in the ranks, but they need no mention. As they look in the mirror, Time, peeping over their shoulders, gives them a glance of friendly greeting—Time, the immortal, always young, always old, always going forward."

KIDNEY DISEASES ARE CURABLE under certain conditions. The right medicine must be taken before the disease has progressed too far. Mr. Perry A. Pitman, Dale, Tex., says: "I was down in bed for four months with kidney and bladder trouble and gall stones. One bottle of Foley's Kidney Remedy cured me well and sound." Ask for it. Ed. D. Hecker-man.

Too Little Care

A small boy of my acquaintance when told that his alleged strawberry jam was probably made of pomace from cider-mills, sweetened with glucose, and supplied with hay seeds or tomato seeds, to make it look natural, said, "I don't care; it looks like jam, and tastes like jam. What difference does it make?" This seems to be the case with more people, than my small boy friend. They do not seem to mind being the victims of fraud, as long as what they get resembles what they want, they don't seem to care whether or not they are getting what they pay for. They entrust their marketing to the telephone, servants or children, and when it comes home they never question whether the butcher, baker, or other food vender, has sent their money's worth; and, too, they never investigate to see whether the real thing or a substitute of foodless food has been sent, and not only their pocket-books are cheated, but often all the family is harmed from eating things which put the human system to a great amount of unnecessary work to carry off the enormous amount of waste. And instead of being given extra nutriment for the extra work, it is getting even less than its normal amount. The result, is a weakened body structure, less able to stand the wear and tear, and more vulnerable to disease.—"The Household Interests," in The Ladies' World for August.

"I have been somewhat costive, but Doan's Regulents gave just the results desired. They act mildly and regulate the bowels perfectly."—George B. Krause, 306 Walnut Ave., Altoona, Pa.

Finding Pearls With Roentgen Rays.

According to a report from our consul in Birmingham, England, a suggestion was recently made that Roentgen rays be used to ascertain whether an oyster contains pearls. In this way, it will be unnecessary to open the oyster's shell and destroy the oyster, unless it contains pearls. If the Roentgen rays show that there are no pearls present the oyster will be put back into the water where it may continue to grow.

Practical Economy.

A child in the family of a farmer near Atlanta, Ga., was thought to be fatally ill, and the forehanded father bought a coffin for it. To his delight the child recovered. For a time the man knew not what to do with the coffin, but he placed four legs under it and now uses it as a water trough.

A POET'S DOG

Ave et Vale, Caesar

You of the broad black brows, that watched me well
With golden eyes of fealty, you that bore
So sleek your coat of brindled tortoise-shell,
With, on the breast before,
For loyalty the white shield blazoned wide,
Twixt your great shoulders and the lengthy span
Of limbs that slender looked, till set beside
The strong arm of a man,

Friend, lover, royal Dane, the empty house
Still seems to hold your presence as of yore,
Who at my bedside knew if but a mouse
Would steal across the floor.

But now each morrow is a sad surprise
Without your greeting from the cushion near,
And wakeful moments miss your watchful eyes
That signalled, "I am here."

The statue sejan, hewn without a flaw,
Upon the stair-head, waiting me below;
For seldom faults the gravely offered paw,
And, from the long ago,

Unwearying attendance still as thought;
The quick quaint sympathy when lights were dim,
The nudging nose at meal-time, which besought
That I remember him.

Remember? Ah, if one could but forget
A faith and selflessness beyond desire!
Not oft in brute or human souls is set
The flame of noble fire.

And few, or high or humble, from at hand
And near, pass out into the twilight gray
By the Heart's Portal, so that Thought must stand
To watch them down the way.

So lost, and laid the veiled days behind
Under my window 'neath the grass and dew,
Ave et vale, Caesar; none may find
Another such as you.

To Get the Best Light.

When using oil lamps the housewife is always very careful that every part of the lamp is scrupulously clean and the burner is boiled to remove any accumulation of dirt. She forgets, though, that her gas jet is just as likely to accumulate soil. Often there is quite a little collection of dust and if this is cleared away the improvement in the light is noticeable.

STOMACH LIVER LUNGS

Each of the chief organs of the body is a link in the Chain of Life. A chain is no stronger than its weakest link, the body no stronger than its weakest organ. If there is weakness of stomach, liver or lungs, there is a weak link in the chain of life which may snap at any time. Often this so-called "weakness" is caused by lack of nutrition; the result of weakness or disease of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. Diseases and weaknesses of the stomach and its allied organs are cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. When the weak or diseased stomach is cured, diseases of other organs which seem remote from the stomach but which have their origin in a diseased condition of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition, are cured also.

The strong man has a strong stomach. Take the above recommended "Discovery" and you may have a strong stomach and a strong body.

How a Woman Got Even With a Telephone Eavesdropper.

In rural New England districts, the telephone takes the place of tea in the city, as a place where women gather and retail gossip. Walter Prichard Eaton, in "The Abandoned Farm," in the August American Magazine, tells the following story:

"It's a great blessing, 'specially if you're on a party line,' said our hostess. 'And we're all on party lines! Wait—'

"She went to the instrument, called a number, and remarked, 'That you, Bessie? What's this I hear 'bout you'n Jim breaking it off?'

"We watched her smile as she listened to the answer. Then she said, 'How'd I hear it? Why, Mrs. Asa Parker told me.'

"She held the receiver free of her ear and beckoned us close. We heard distinctly an indignant voice exclaim, 'Why, Sarah Bowers, I never said no such a thing!'

"I thought I'd catch her," said Mrs. Bowers, when the telephone conversation was closed. 'As I told you, the 'phone's a great comfort to us all!'

FOLEY'S KIDNEY REMEDY
Makes Kidneys and Bladder Right

Entertaining Rosamund

Uncle Robert's heart reproached him. Possibly he was too self-centered and selfish. Perhaps he never did think to do nice things for other people. Maybe he could make the world happier if he reformed. So he invited Rosamund, his 8-year-old niece, to spend a long, beautiful day with him out at his golf club.

He knew he should not have his usual happy, carefree game. The responsibility of a child would distract him and possibly she would tear her dress or get hungry at inopportune times, but he resolved to sacrifice himself. All this would he do so that he might carelessly mention his benevolent deed that evening when he was to take tea with Miss Miller. He hoped Miss Miller would be overcome properly with contrition and feel she had misjudged him cruelly on one or two previous occasions when she had let drop comments on his disregard for others. Perhaps she would wake up to the fact that she was letting a golden opportunity slip in not grabbing him.

Not that Uncle Robert put this bald fact into so many words. He told his sister over the telephone that he would really enjoy taking care of Rosamund, and he wished to get better acquainted with her and let the child realize that she had an uncle who was an uncle.

"It is very kind of you," his sister said in surprise. "Are you quite sure you want to bother with her? She is such an active child!"

Rosamund betrayed no surprise at Uncle Robert's flattering attentions, but appeared to take them as a matter of course.

"Goody! Goody!" she chortled, as she skipped along to the train with her escort. "An' kin I play golf, too?"

"Well, I am afraid you wouldn't enjoy it," said Uncle Robert diplomatically. "You see there are no sticks, your size. You can find some other little girl and play with her and follow me around."

There proved to be two other little girls among those present and he introduced Rosamund to them with sundry cautions and advice. Not being used to children, Uncle Robert fondly supposed they lent a respectful and studious ear to the remarks of their elders and modeled their conduct on their precepts.

He had his first jolt just as he was negotiating a hard putt on the third green. As he swung horrid shrieks rent the air and he shot the ball three feet wide of the mark. Everybody jumped and began looking for the murder. Back at the water hazard two small girls danced wildly on the bank—and Uncle Robert ran. Somebody else had fished Rosamund out when he arrived, scarlet and appalled. It was a muddy hazard and Rosamund presented a sad appearance.

"Hush!" ordered her distracted uncle. "I don't understand—didn't I expressly tell you to stay away from the brook?"

"They wuz a f-frog," explained his sobbing niece. "He jumped and so did I! It was his fault!"

Uncle Robert's partners said grimly that they didn't mind waiting, so he conducted Rosamund back to the clubhouse, and the steward's wife undertook to dry her out, and make her respectable, meanwhile putting her to bed, where she would be rendered, harmless.

The delayed game went on to the end—and a chastened Rosamund, slightly grimy as to pink gown, joined him at luncheon, where she only tipped over her milk and the vinegar and dropped a chop on the floor.

He set her to picking wild flowers that afternoon, but when he came in from the course he found her in a corner of the porch with an oddly swollen face.

"She got into the marsh where the mosquitoes are," said the steward's wife. "And besides I'm afraid she picked some poison ivy!"

With a sigh Uncle Robert hastened to put himself to rights before the golf special at 5 o'clock for town. "I am going to take a shower bath," he told his niece, "and dress. Then we'll go home."

Five minutes before the bus left for the train Uncle Robert, immaculate and fresh as befitting a gentleman about to go to tea at Miss Miller's stepped out on the porch. There was no swollen-faced, muddy little niece visible. Though a large person, Uncle Robert can hasten on occasion and this was one. He dashed at high speed through the clubhouse, walling distractedly, "Rosamund! Rosamund!"

The first bus rattled off. Other people took up the search. A regular mob tore about yelling "Rosamund!" The second bus left.

Uncle Robert with wilted collar, staring eyes and congested face nearly stepped on a small girl in a corridor. It was one of the two who had been Rosamund's companions that fatal day. She turned limpid, angelic eyes up to his frantic query.

"Rosamund?" she lisped. "Yeth, I know where thee ith—thec's in taking a shower bath!" And the bus rattled off.

By merely remarking that a deserted golf club when it is the tag end of the day is the deadiest, gloomiest spot on earth, and that the next train for the city left at 7 o'clock and was slow, bringing one in perhaps in time for breakfast, but assuredly not in time for tea, this little tale will be brought to a close.

Professional Certificate Examination

The examination for professional certificates will be held in the Bedford High School Building, Bedford, Pa., Tuesday and Wednesday, August 29 and 30. Applicants must take the examination in all the common school subjects and in addition must pass a satisfactory examination in Draper's American Education and McMurtry's How to Study and Teaching How to Study and any two of the branches named in the code, namely: vocal music, drawing, English literature, plane geometry, general history, physical geography, elements of botany, zoology or physics. Uniform paper will be furnished by the Superintendent. The examination will begin at 8 o'clock a. m. Applicants should bring their health certificates to the board for getting a school and only those who are granted certificates this year need present any to the Superintendent.

The law requires all teachers who teach in the county to take their certificates to the Superintendent for registration before entering upon their duties as teacher. All professional certificates issued 1910 or before, College Permanents and Teachers' Permanents are the only ones which need to be recorded. The rest are in the possession of the Superintendent. The record book from the Department at Harrisburg has not been received at the office yet, hence the registration will have to be postponed until the record book arrives. Teachers will be required to report by districts on scheduled days which will be published later.

Yours truly,
Victor E. P. Barkman,
County Superintendent.

Methodist Day, August 3

This year's program holds some strong features, a few superior. Dr. Robert Bagnell of Brooklyn is the morning preacher. His fame is high. In the afternoon Secretary A. B. Leonard, of the Foreign Missionary Society, speaks. No man more informed on Missions by long service, investigation and visitation than he. The popular evening address will be made by Dr. C. L. Mead of Baltimore, whose notable address in First Church, Altoona, three years ago left a lasting impression. Expect surpassing exercises.

Former railroad arrangements will be wonderfully excelled by the schedules for this year. The Saxton train, via Bedford, gets to Hollidaysburg at 9:30, returning leaves Hollidaysburg at 7 p. m.

A Fish Tale

Harvey and Metzger Benson, of Haddonfield, N. J., are spending the summer in Bedford with their grandparents, Colonel and Mrs. James Metzger. The boys have a canoe in which they enjoy rides on the Rays-town Branch. A few days ago they were boating down the stream, below Bedford, when a black bass weighing a little over a pound jumped into the boat and was promptly secured by the navigators. It furnished a savory addition to the breakfast the following morning. On a number of occasions bass have leaped against the side of the boat, perhaps with the intention of driving the intruders from their domain. This one evidently made a miscalculation and came to grief.

Bowling Prizes

The prizes for the bowling tournaments at the Springs alleys have been on exhibition in Mr. Mook's show window this week. They consist of six handsome watch fobs bearing the crest of the hotel. They include one for the highest ten-pin score of the season, one for the highest duck pin score and four for tournaments, two ten-pin and one duck pin. The duck pin tournament carries both a first and second prize. The handicap tournament is on this week, closing Wednesday night next and some surprises in total scores will probably develop.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundations of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. ALL DRUGGISTS

RED HAIR WAS NEW TO THEM

Indians for a Long Time Insisted That White Man's Scalp Must Have Been Painted.

Forty years ago the Indians in Colorado knew but little of the white man, and nothing hardly of his ways or habits except from tradition. Among the people who went to settle in Colorado at that time was a man with very red hair. He and his party were thrown among the Indians, who thought at first that his hair was painted, just as they painted their own bodies and faces.

An old chief came up to him one day and looked at his hair very carefully.

"Ugh!" said he. And then, turning to the interpreter who had the party in charge, he wanted him to ask the man where he got the kind of paint that would color, and yet not be greasy or look dabby. He was told that the man's hair was not painted, but he would not believe it. He once more walked up to the man and scrutinized his locks, running his hand through them and looking at his fingers.

The red-haired man became a little nervous, and half fancied that the chief was calculating how nice a red scalp would look hung to his belt. The interpreter, however, laughingly told the man what the chief had said. Two or three more of the Indians then gathered around the party, and they and the interpreter had a pow-wow. Finally the interpreter asked the man if he would object to putting water on his hair.

He saw the Indians would not believe but that it was painted, until they saw that the water would not wash the color out. The man took some water, rubbed it on his hair, and then showed his hands to them. But it took four or five days of wondering examination to convince them that he had not found some peculiar paint, and got himself up in a bright red suit of hair.

HE WAS A DANGEROUS RISK

In These Rushing Days the Pedestrian Has No Show at All With Insurance Company.

Here was a case where it seemed as if everything was settled. The insurance company's doctor had reported that the man seemed to be all right, and the man himself had certified that he was not engaged in any dangerous occupation.

"I lead a sedentary life," he told them. "I work in an office and we have no danger or excitement."

"How about sports?" the examiner asked. "Do you football? Baseball? Do you box?" Do you belong to an athletic club?"

"No—none of that stuff. I guess I'm a safe risk."

"Do you scorch?"

"What do you mean?"

"Do you drive your car faster than the speed limit?"

"I have no car."

"What? How do you get about?"

"I walk."

"Risk refused. A scorcher is a dangerous risk, but a pedestrian has no chance at all. Buy a car, old chap. Sorry—good night!"

"Nary a speed," said the chauffeur, trying to be amiable.

"When did ye leave Quinceville?" demanded Silas, suspiciously.

"Five o'clock this morning," said the chauffeur, with a wink at his companion.

"Five this mornin', eh?" said the constable, catching the wink. "Taken ye six hours to come, four miles. Waal, I guess I'll run ye in, anyhow, only I'll change the complaint from overspeedin' to obstructin' the highway."—Harper's Weekly.

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

Among the Mexican Revolutionists

By EDWIN V. CHASE

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

Mexico being in the throes of revolution, I was sent down there on secret service duty for the United States government. In order that I might be properly armed with an introduction to whomsoever I needed to consult I was given a letter addressed "To whom it may concern" stating that I was an official of the United States sent to Mexico to gather information on the political condition of the country that would serve as a basis for any action the government might take in the premises.

Since an American was liable to be hated and suspected, especially by the revolutionists, I had no desire to fall into their hands with such a document on my person. I had asked to have it written on thin paper and occupying no great space in order that I might the better conceal it in case of necessity. I thought over many places of keeping it, but finally decided to put it in one of the little chest pockets of my waistcoat.

I entered the state or province of Chihuahua, which was in the hands of the revolutionists, pretending to favor their cause. After learning all I could in this district I entered the next on the east, Coahuila, which I found neither in the possession of the Mexican government nor the rebels, but in a state of anarchy. Falling into the hands of a small band of insurgents, I was arrested as an American resident and spy. I managed to save my neck by confessing that I was in the secret service not of the United States government, but of Madero. This secured me excellent treatment, and I was suffered to depart for Nuevo Leon, the next eastern province and in the hands of the Diaz forces. In this province is Monterrey, where the battle of that name was fought during our war with Mexico.

At Monterrey I presented my letter to whomsoever I thought would aid me and received information that was at least reliable. From Monterrey, moving southward, I entered San Luis Potosi, in the same state of disorder as Coahuila. Here I was in constant dread of being known or considered as a spy of the United States government by roving bands of insurgents.

Entering the house of a leader of one of these bands, I found it necessary to pretend to be an ardent rebel sympathizer. This pleased Signor Molina, in whose house I was, and he treated me royally till along came a man whom I had met in Monterrey. This man was a rebel and evidently remembered me and that I was, when he first met me, consorting with the Diaz people.

Outwardly Molina did not change his treatment of me except to be more scrupulously polite, but I knew I was under suspicion, and this in a province where there was no law was dangerous. At any rate, I felt that if the letter I bore were found I would be treated as a spy on the revolutionary forces and according to the fancy of those in whose hands I happened to be.

I told Molina that I thought I would go on, but he invited me to remain longer with him in such pressing terms that I knew he would not suffer me to depart without being better satisfied concerning me. I began to consider myself in great danger. If the letter I carried were found on me I would surely be considered as a spy on the movements of the revolutionists.

I tried to get rid of Molina long enough to destroy it, but he would not suffer me to go out of his sight. Not caring to let him see that I understood his purpose, I made no opposition to his keeping me with him.

Realizing that I was in for a serious business, I concluded to play a bold game. I began to tell my jailer host real or imaginary happenings to convince him that I was not only a sympathizer with the revolution, but was engaged in secret service work for the revolutionists. Such information as I could give him without breach of confidence concerning the government forces I told him as a great secret. The ruse evidently had no effect upon him.

Indeed, it seemed to make him all the more suspicious of me. At last, throwing off all disguise, he looked me steadily in the eye and said: "Who you are I don't know, except that you are an American, and the Americans who live here we hate. One thing I know—you have been at Monterrey hand in glove with the Diaz forces."

I laughed outright. "Of course I have been hand in glove with them. Why should I not have been? How can I get their secrets without first gaining their confidence? Come, Signor Molina, let us have a smoke."

Producing a cigar, I handed it to him. He accepted it, and for the moment I had restored confidence. "Have you a match?" I asked. He had not a match. If he had I should have been shot for a spy.

I arose from my chair and looked about for a light. It was the spring season, and since a norther was blowing the room was warmed by a stove. Going to it, I opened the door, fumbled in my pockets for a bit of paper, took out my letter, twisted it, touched it to a flame and lit my cigar with it.

I was just in time. Half an hour later I was searched for incriminating papers. None were found, and I went free.

Lesson V.—Third Quarter, For July 30, 1911.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, II Chron. xxxiv, 14-33—Memory Verse, 21—Golden Text, Ps. cxix, 11—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

We are still in the reign of good King Josiah, and the heart of this lesson is a book, the book of the law of the Lord by Moses, a book concerning which we read in Josh. 1, 8, "This book of the law shall not depart out of thy mouth, but thou shalt meditate therein day and night, that thou mayest observe to do according to all that is written therein, for then thou shalt make thy way prosperous, and then thou shalt have good success." It is also written of the blessed man in Ps. 1, 2, "His delight is in the law of the Lord, and in His law doth he meditate day and night."

No one rejoiced more than Jeremiah over the finding of this book, for he said, "Thy words were found, and I did eat them, and Thy word was unto me the joy and rejoicing of mine heart, for I am called by Thy name, Lord God of hosts." David could say, "I rejoice at Thy word as one that findeth great spoil" (Ps. cxix, 162). "If our hearts are right with God, nothing in all the world will be so precious to us as the word of God. Not only will our hearts burn within us when the Spirit opens to us the Scriptures, but there will be a boiling or bubbling up as we hear of things touching the King (Luke xiv, 32; Ps. xiv, 1)."

There is but one principal person in all the book from Genesis to Revelation, even the one who said: "Lo, I come in the volume of the book it is written of me, I delight to do thy will, O my God: Yea, thy law is within my heart" (Ps. xl, 7-8). It was for Him that Josiah was king, sitting upon His throne as His representative (I Chron. xix, 23; II Chron. ix, 8), and the finding of this book must have been to Josiah like a special message from Jehovah. It was in connection with the repairing of the house of the Lord that the book was found, and we are reminded of Hosea vi, 3, "Then shall we know if we follow on to know the Lord." Josiah was earnestly doing the best he knew when by this book the Lord revealed Himself more fully. It is by His word that the Lord always reveals Himself (I Sam. iii, 21). He is the Living Word, and He reveals Himself to us by His written word, in which we see Him and know Him.

When the king heard the words of the book as they were read to him by Shaphan, the scribe, he rent his clothes, for he saw therein his sin and the sin of his people and that great wrath from the Lord was upon them because they had not kept the word of the Lord to do after all that was written in the book (verse 21). There was a prophetic in Jerusalem named Huldah, and to her they went to inquire of the Lord concerning these matters. Let all believing women be encouraged by this and by the remembrance of Priscilla instructing Apollos and by the fact that the first resurrection message was given by the Lord Jesus to a woman and that the first proclamation of the gospel in Europe was at a woman's prayer meeting and also by the story of Philip's daughters and by Ps. lxxviii, 11, "By the way, to let the Lord use them as His witnesses as He may lead. The seeming prohibitions in several places refer to order instead of confusion, and to this day in some of the eastern churches the women babble in time of service and even call their husbands by name and ask questions which ought to be asked at home instead of disturbing the congregation. Let all who are taught of the Lord hold themselves ready to teach others at every opportunity, for if ever there was a time when true witnesses were needed it is now, when women as well as men are being so used by the devil against the truth.

How grand to hear this woman of God say, "Thus saith the Lord God of Israel, tell ye the man that sent you to me" (verse 23). To a true servant of the Lord He is all, and to please Him is everything; men are nothing except they glorify God. See the Lord's commendation of Josiah in verse 27, and note his tender heart, his humility and true penitence, and note in Isa. lvii, 15, that He who dwells in the high and holy place also dwells with him who is of a humble and contrite spirit.

Josiah promptly gathered priests and Levites and all the people, great and small, and read in their ears all the words of the book of the covenant, and there they made a covenant before the Lord to serve Him as He required with all their heart and soul, and all the days of Josiah they departed not from following the Lord, the God of their fathers.

In such men as Jeroboam and Ahab and Manasseh we see how much evil one man can do and how far-reaching the results, but in such men as Hezekiah, Jehoshaphat and Josiah we see what God can do through even such imperfect men if only sincerely obedient to Him. As this is our last study of Josiah, we must not fail to notice his great passover, the like of which had not been seen in Israel since the days of Samuel (chapter xxxv, 18). That leads on to the passover which our Lord Jesus so greatly desired to keep with His disciples and to its future fulfillment in His kingdom (Luke xxii, 15, 16).

Elmira, N. Y., July 23.—Pastor Russell delivered two addresses here today to crowded and attentive audiences. We report one on "God in the Home," from the text, "As for me and my house, we will serve the Lord" (Joshua xxiv, 15). The Pastor said:

Do not understand me to teach that the world's opportunity for life everlasting or death everlasting is now. "God hath appointed a Day in which He will judge the world," grant the world a judgment or trial or test. That great Day is future. It is the Day of Christ, a thousand years long. It will be a glorious opportunity. Present right doing and wrong thinking, or wrong doing and wrong thinking will have much to do with the condition of every man and woman at that time. He or she will enter upon that Day of blessing and opportunity either from a higher or a lower standpoint proportionately as he or she has acted wisely and conscientiously in the present time.

But nothing that the world can do can interfere with God's great proposition, that a full opportunity for life or death eternal shall then come to every member of the race because Christ died for the ungodly. The only class to whom present life means life or death eternal is the Church. And by the Church I mean, not church attendants nor outward professors, but those who have entered into a covenant with God through Christ and who have been made partakers of the Holy Spirit, tasting of the good Word of God and the powers of the Age to come. If these should fall away, the Apostle forewarns us, it would be impossible to renew them again unto repentance. And there will be no hope for them with the world, in the world's trial Day, because they already have enjoyed their share of the merit of Christ's death.

When, therefore, I speak of God and the home, I am not having in mind a family composed exclusively of saints, who daily and hourly are following their great Redeemer's footsteps in self-denial, in sacrifice, in the "narrow way" which leads to "glory, honor and immortality" and association with the Redeemer in His glorious Kingdom which is to bless the world for a thousand years.

My thought is that the Bible teaches that there are many people of the world, who are reverential, kind, gentle and just to a very considerable degree, who are not saints; who have not presented their bodies living sacrifices to God; who have not been begotten of His Holy Spirit, who are not, therefore, members of that exclusive "little flock" to whom it is the Father's good pleasure to give the Kingdom—in joint-heirship with their Lord and Redeemer and Head. To this latter class our Master evidently referred when He said to His footstep followers, "Let your light so shine before men that they may see your good works and glorify your Father which is in heaven" (Matthew v, 16).

To live righteously, soberly and godly in this present world to the extent of one's ability is what everyone should do—no less. To live a life of sacrifice—to lay down our lives for the brethren, for the truth, in the service of the Lord, is another matter,

VERIFY IT

The Proof Is In Bedford Almost at Your Door.

The public statement of a Bedford citizen is in itself strong proof for Bedford people, but confirmation strengthens the evidence.

Here is a Bedford citizen who testified years ago that Doan's Kidney Pills relieved sick kidneys and now states the cure was permanent. Can any sufferer from kidney ills ask better proof? You can investigate. The case is right at home.

Mrs. Mary J. Corle, 218 East Pitt Street, Bedford, Pa., says: "I was afflicted with backache and other symptoms of kidney trouble for some time and nothing seemed to do me any good. The kidney secretions were unnatural and my health was badly run down. Seeing Doan's Kidney Pills advertised, I obtained a box at John R. Dull's Drug Store and I had not used them long before I found that they lived up to representations. I am now feeling better in every way, and my kidneys do not trouble me." (Statement given in October 1907.)

A Second Statement
Mrs. Corle was interviewed on November 13, 1909, and she said: "The relief Doan's Kidney Pills gave me has been permanent. You are at liberty to continue the publication of my statement."

which justice does not require and which the Bible nowhere enjoins upon mankind. It is pointed out as a privilege to those who desire it; and glory, honor and immortality on the spirit plane is the reward attached to this invitation or High Calling. It is the selection of this special class of consecrated ones that is the particular order of the Divine program at the present time.

Saint and Sinner Interested

Having clearly defined what we do not mean to teach, let me now assert that, nevertheless, every sensible man and woman, saintly or not, must feel a deep interest in the welfare and moral progress of the human family, of which he forms a part. All, therefore, should rejoice in every movement and endeavor working to even temporary enlightenment, blessing and uplift amongst mankind. The many benevolent institutions of the civilized world attest this general thought. My only conflict with these humanitarian efforts is that they do not approach the subject of human betterment from what I consider to be the right standpoint. With nearly all of these efforts, more or less distinctly stated, are those God-dishonoring and love-opposing intimations of an alternative of torment, either purgatorial or eternal. This is the great blight which has worked and is working incalculable harm—driving intelligent minds into opposition to the true God and the Bible, which is the revelation of His Wisdom, Justice, Love and Power.

The Bible freely tells us that many features of the Divine plan are now hidden in mystery, but the last book of the Bible, which prophetically pictures the future, assures us that in God's due time "The mystery shall be finished, which He hath declared to His servants, the prophets" (Revelation x, 7). The same book assures us that in God's due time, when the mystery is cleared, "All nations shall come and worship before Thee, for Thy righteous acts have been made manifest" (Revelation xv, 4). We are now living in the time when the "mystery" is ending and the righteous dealings of God, from the Scriptural standpoint, may be clearly seen.

But these revelations are not meant for the world in general now, but merely for "the elect," the "sanctified in Christ Jesus." "To you it is given to know the mysteries;" to outsiders these things are spoken in parables and dark sayings (Matthew xiii, 11, 13). But not until the elect shall be glorified and the Messianic Kingdom established will the "mystery" be made fully known to the world and every knee bow and every tongue confess. Hence, only those of a contrite heart may now see, now understand the real character of God, His real purposes toward man, etc. Thus our Lord declares, "This is life eternal that they should know Thee, the only true God, and Jesus Christ whom Thou hast sent," (John xvii, 3).

In a darker day than ours the theory, "to doubt is to be damned," held such a power over many that they dared not use their reason. And thus a certain reverence for God was maintained in many homes—a reverence, however, which surely would not be as highly appreciated by the Creator nor have as deep an influence upon the creature as would a faith moved by love and an intelligent appreciation of the Divine character, based upon an understanding of the Divine Plan of the Ages.

An Inundation of Unbelief

In our day the shackles of ignorance and superstition are breaking. Men, women and children are beginning to think for themselves. They no longer believe the fairy tales of other days; the dreadful hobgoblins and nightmares of the Dark Ages respecting purgatory and eternal torture are doubted by all, and by the great mass totally disbelieved. What have they now to attach them to the Almighty, since they have never been taught the love of God—the lengths and breadths and heights and depths passing all human understanding? This is the world's great need—to know God as He really is, a Father, a God of love! And to, thus know Him the people need to be taught how seriously they were mistaught in the past along the lines of hell and purgatory.

How could they ever truly love and worship a God of injustice and of hate—One inferior to themselves—One who knew, foreordained and prepared for their torture, before they were born. They must see that these things, taught by the creeds of the Dark Ages, are wholly at variance with the Bible, else they will never come back to the Bible nor be able to see its teachings in their true light. They must be taught that the sin and death, sorrow and trouble all around us are the wage or penalty of father Adam's disobedience. They must learn that God proposes a blessing and uplifting which will be as wide as is the curse. They must learn that the foundation for this work was effected by the death of Jesus, the Just for the unjust. They must learn that God is now selecting a saintly class to be associates with the Redeemer in the work of uplifting and blessing Adam and his race; and that each will be held responsible and receive stripes in proportion to his knowledge and wilful disobedience; and that the persistently rebellious will be destroyed "like natural brute beasts," in the Second Death.

"I Have Lost My God"

Not long since, in conversation with a young lady, she said with great concern, "I fear that I have lost my God." As a child of religious parents, she had had helpful influences in her home, but in school she had come in contact with the general spirit of skepticism, which, instead of repudiating the Bible, as did Ingersoll, Paine and Voltaire, merely smiles at any reference to a Divine revelation, a faith in God and a respect for His will. These teachers are as honest, we believe, as were Ingersoll, Paine and Voltaire; nor can we deny that they have the same right to their disbelief that we claim for our belief. We can, however, say with all sincerity that it is a great pity that the learned men of Christendom are nearly all infidels, in the sense of not believing in the Bible as a Divine revelation.

Many of them even deny that there is a personal God and ascribe everything to—a great Nothing, which they designate Nature-god. It is surprising, in view of the fact that these teachings are being promulgated in the universities and colleges and theological seminaries, in the high schools, and even to some extent in the common schools—is it any wonder that the rising generation is losing its God? If it even be claimed that a bad thing is better lost than kept, we must dissent from their course. We must claim that the misconception of God can be destroyed only by the introduction to the heart and mind of the true God, whose glorious attributes of Justice, Wisdom, Love and Power will take the place of the malevolent misconceptions of the Dark Ages.

Awakened Parental Responsibility

It's high time that parents realize the true situation—it is almost too late now. The seeds of unbelief, already sown in the minds of the rising generation, are being watered continually and are growing. All who love their families, all who love mankind in general, should awaken to the fact that a world that has lost its God must of necessity be an unhappy world. Platonic philosophy may for a time serve the purposes of the few, but surely cannot serve the masses of our race. A godless world will ere long mean a discontented world, an unhappy world and, bye and bye, a world of anarchy and strife. This is what our worldwide education is leading to. Few of our race can stand an education which recognizes no God, no revelation of Him, no responsibility to Him, and no hope of a future life which will be effected by the conduct of the present.

God in the Home

We are not pleading for cant and rant. We are urging that in every home God be recognized to the extent of the opportunities and influence we enjoy. Parents have a special responsibility. Every father, in particular, as the head of his family, should recognize the Almighty Creator, and hold Him up to his family—"God First!" We need not urge upon God's consecrated people the privileges of prayer and the blessed influence which comes through prayer to the younger members of the family. This is one way of putting "God First." "In all thy ways acknowledge Him," or, as Joshua said: "As for me and my house, we will serve the Lord."

Let us now step into your home and measure things there by the Golden Rule. As husbands, how do you treat your wives? As wives, how do you treat your husbands? Can you apply the Golden Rule to your words, to your conduct, to your demands of each other? Or do you act meanly, selfishly, taking advantage of each other, to the limit that the other will forbear? Do you deal with your children according to the lines of the Golden Rule? Are you an ideal parent, according to your own advanced standard of what a parent's duty should be to his children?

Do you remember that you have a responsibility for their training, a responsibility so far as your circumstances will permit, for their environment and happiness and education and general preparation for usefulness in life? Or are you indifferent to their interests, neglectful of your responsibilities? Do you recognize that your children have certain rights and that these increase as they near maturity, or are you forgetful of these, disposed to keep the children under the restraints of childhood, souring their dispositions and making them unhappy, until they resent the injustice and a family quarrel results?

As children, are you thoughtful of your parents, their welfare, their wishes, their happiness, as you would like your children to be thoughtful of yours? Do you remember the hours and weeks of feebleness and sickness and toil which you cost them in your infancy, and are you seeking to repay those kindnesses and seeking to make their last days the happiest of their lives? Are you observing the Golden Rule toward your parents?

How is it in your relationship to your brothers and sisters? When they borrow your things without leave, do you retaliate by borrowing theirs without leave, and thus keep up a continual fret and vexation of spirit in the family? Or do you practice the Golden Rule of justice and do nothing to your brother and sister, or their belongings, that you would not wish them to do to you or your things?

"Love Worketh No Ill"

All of the Lord's people are to love Him and the brethren; yea, even their enemies. However, let us now stop short of love and merely consider what the simple justice of the Golden Rule would imply in our conduct. How do our daily lives square with this Golden Rule of absolute justice, omitting love entirely?

If you are an employer, do you treat your employee in harmony with this rule and do unto him as you would have him do unto you, if your positions were reversed? If you are an employee, inquire of yourself, "Do I treat my employer and his business as I would have him treat me and my business, if our relationship were reversed?" Do you treat your butcher, your baker, your grocer, etc., as you would like to have them treat you, if your positions were reversed? Are you polite to them and not inclined to give them unnecessary trouble? Do you pay them promptly? Or if you are the tradesman, do you treat your customers as you would wish to have them treat you, if conditions were reversed? Do you charge them a reasonable price only? Do you give them proper weight and measure? Do you properly represent your goods to them, as you would have them represented to you? Are you a good neighbor? Do you see to it that your children are not a nuisance to others; that your chickens are not permitted to damage your neighbor's garden; that your dog is not a ferocious one, and that his bark does not keep the neighborhood awake? In a word, do you treat your neighbor justly, along the lines of the Golden Rule, doing unto him only as you would wish him to do to you?

He who is faithful in little things will be faithful in the greater ones. He who practices the Golden Rule during the six days of his contact with business will surely be faithful on the seventh, but faithfulness to the Golden Rule on the one day only will never win Divine approval.

In no way can we better honor and show our reverence for God than by following to the best of our ability His commands, which are just and righteous altogether.

Honest Medicines Versus Fakes

President Taft's recent message suggesting an amendment to the Pure Food and Drugs law in its relation to Prepared Medicines, does not refer to such standard medicines as Foley's Honey and Tar Compound and Foley Kidney Pills, both of which are true medicines carefully compounded of ingredients whose medicinal qualities are recognized by the medical profession itself as the best known remedial agents for the diseases they are intended to counteract. For over three decades Foley's Honey and Tar Compound has been a standard remedy for coughs, colds and affections of the throat, chest and lungs for children and for grown persons, and it retains today its pre-eminence above all other preparations of its kind. Foley Kidney Pills are equally effective and meritorious. Ed. D. Heckerman.

Trained Dairymen

Three hundred and thirty-one students received instruction in 14 different subjects relating to dairying at the Pennsylvania State College during the year just closed. All but a few of these were young men from Pennsylvania. Some of this number studied more than one subject and included such work as Farm Butter-making, Factory Buttermaking, Feeding Dairy Cows, Judging Dairy Cattle, etc. Of the forty odd men in the last winter course who studied Cattle Feeding and Cattle Judging, all but four went back to their own farms or had positions before they came to the College.

Doubtless there are many young men in every county in Pennsylvania who could add from five to fifteen dollars a month to their income by fitting themselves for a position as dairymen or herdsman on dairy farms, where in addition to practical experience, knowledge of the principles which insure high class dairy products is required.

Many a young fellow working on a farm for wages could save enough in a few months to put himself through a winter course at a state school of agriculture, then go out worth at least five dollars per month more than when he went in, and if he makes good in the course of a year or two he should be worth three or four times that increase.

HAY FEVER AND SUMMER COLDS

Must be relieved quickly and Foley's Honey and Tar Compound will do it. E. M. Stewart, 1034 Wolfram St., Chicago, writes: "I have been greatly troubled during the hot summer months with Hay Fever and find that by using Foley's Honey and Tar Compound I get great relief." Many others who suffer similarly will be glad to benefit by Mr. Stewart's experience. Ed. D. Heckerman.

That Famous Unknown.

L. E. Ralston lost a valuable umbrella on a St. Clair street car the other day. In his advertisement in the Leader asking for the return of the umbrella, Mr. Ralston said: "Will the man for whom Diogenes made his famous search kindly bring back my umbrella and receive his reward."—Cleveland Leader.

The Union Central Life Ins. Co.

I paid you $2,881.50 and have returned to me $5,054.80, a gain of $2,173.30 and the protection of $5,000 of Insurance for the time. No other of the ten best companies would have matured this policy at the rate I paid before age 55; you have matured it at 61, my present age.

This is the policy agents of competing companies, and every person who knew I had this policy, said it would never mature. They may have their opinion yet, but I have $5,054.80.

I want to congratulate every Union Central Life Rate Endowment policy holder for being so fortunate as to secure such a policy, for there never was a better form of policy written by any company. I also remember your agents for the courtesies shown to me, J. B. Decker, General Agent, Central Pennsylvania Agency, and J. C. Roberts, agent at Bedford, Pa.
